2. Ms Harris has made a special point of calling this office to express her appreciation for the information she received. She said that it was the best briefing on the subject that she had ever received. Since she has received several briefings on other subjects from Agency analysts, I believe that her special call means that the briefing was indeed significantly above our normal high standard.

3. When we receive such positive comments from our Congressional customers, we feel that they should be passed on to the person who deserves the credit, in this case [Redacted] Please convey our appreciation to him also.
